

Peptide Documentation Verification Checklist

Use this before comparing prices or supplier claims. Check only what the records actually support.

1. LOT AND TRACEABILITY

- ☐ Material name and stated form are visible
- ☐ Current product lot matches the report
- ☐ Report number and sample identifier are present
- ☐ Test, report, and release dates are visible
- ☐ A complete report can be preserved or downloaded

2. LABORATORY AND SAMPLING

- ☐ Laboratory name, location, and official contact are verifiable
- ☐ Report can be checked through an independent channel
- ☐ Accreditation status and relevant scope were reviewed
- ☐ Who selected and submitted the sample is disclosed
- ☐ The tested sample can be connected to the offered lot

3. ANALYTICAL EVIDENCE

- ☐ Identity and purity are reported separately
- ☐ Full chromatogram and integration table are available
- ☐ Expected and observed mass information is shown
- ☐ Method or instrument details provide usable context
- ☐ Specifications and numerical results are visible
- ☐ Any quantity claim has a suitable quantitative assay

4. CLAIM-SPECIFIC GAPS

- ☐ Water and counterion content addressed when relevant
- ☐ Residual solvents addressed when claimed
- ☐ Sterility, bioburden, or endotoxin supported only by suitable tests
- ☐ Stability or expiration claims have supporting records
- ☐ Unmeasured attributes are not implied by HPLC or MS alone

5. BUSINESS RECORD

- ☐ Legal business identity and contact channel are clear
- ☐ Shipping origin, returns, privacy, and support are stated
- ☐ Research-only positioning is not contradicted by medical-style marketing

EVIDENCE LABELS

- ☐ CONFIRMED - independently connected to a source record
- ☐ REPORTED - stated by the supplier or laboratory
- ☐ UNRESOLVED - insufficient public evidence
- ☐ CONTRADICTED - records or claims do not agree

Document the decision

Preserve what was visible, when it was checked, and which questions remain unanswered.

REVIEW OUTCOME

☐ Continue review ☐ Hold for more evidence ☐ Exclude from current comparison

A documentation review is time-bounded. Recheck current lots, reports, prices, policies, and relationships before publication.
